National Flower

The Chinese Hibiscus is Malaysia’s national flower.

National Anthem

Malaysia’s national anthem is Negaraku. Meaning: my country. The lyrics are in the following:

Coat of Arms

Adopted in 1965, Malaysia’s Coat of Arms consists of the flag of Malaysia, the crescent moon and star, the national flower, and the colors of the states and the federal government. The crescent moon and star symbolizes the unity of Malaysia, while the colors represent the various states and the federal government. The flag of Malaysia consists of a dark blue rectangle in the upper left corner containing the 14 states’ horizontal stripes, while the national flag of Malaysia features the crescent moon and star.

Flag of Malaysia

Symbols and Emblems

Flags, Symbols
Melaysia is the world's second largest producer of palm oil. Kuala Lumpur, Bahasa Malaysia, Melaka, Penang and Johor are major palm oil producing regions in Malaysia.

Search Key Words

- Palm oil
- Malaysia
- Kuala Lumpur
- Bahasa Malaysia
- Melaka
- Penang
- Johor
- Johor Bahru
- Singapore
- Indonesia
- United States
- China
- India
- Canada

Sources and Search

- Google
- Wikipedia
- BBC
- CNN
- Reuters
- Al Jazeera
- China Daily
- The Straits Times

Primary and Secondary Sources

Primary Sources:
- Official government documents
- Court records
- Newletters
- Newspapers
- Original scientific studies
- Conversations with primary sources
- Historical documents

Secondary Sources:
- Books
- Articles
- Essays
- News articles
- Television and film
- Internet

Primary sources are information created by someone who was a part of or witnessed the event or phenomenon under study. Secondary sources are information that interpret, evaluate, compile, or analyze primary sources. They are a crucial part of the research process because they provide context and depth to primary source material.

To search for primary sources, use databases like JSTOR, ProQuest, or Google Scholar. For secondary sources, search websites like Wikipedia, Britannica, or other reputable online encyclopedias. Use key terms like "Malaysia palm oil," "palm oil production," or "Malaysia agriculture" to find relevant articles.

Research and writing are two sides of the same coin. Without research, writing is empty. Without writing, research is wasted.